Choosing the Right College

Factors to Consider:

1. Location/School Size
2. Public, Private or Community College
3. Academics & Accreditation
4. Cost/Financial Aid
Choosing the Right College

1. Location/School Size

   - Travel Far OR Stay Close to Home
   - Colleges Come In Sizes: Small, Medium or Large

Example of Student Populations:

Beloit College: 1,300 | UW-Parkside: 5,000 | CLC: 12,000 | Univ of IL: 43,000!!
2. Public, Private or Community College

Public Universities:

- Established Reputation
- 4-Year Degree Options [and Beyond!]
- Many Degree Choices
- Diverse Student Body
- Cost-Effective, In-State Tuition Rates
- Offer FEWER Academic & Athletic Scholarships
Choosing the Right College

2. Public, Private or Community College

Private Universities:
- Established Reputation/Selective Admissions
- 4-Year Degree Options [and Beyond!]
- Limited Degree Choices
- Typically SMALLER Student Body/Less Diversity
- Come with a SCARY Price Tag!
- Offer MORE Academic & Athletic Scholarships
Choosing the Right College

2. Public, Private or Community College

Community Colleges:
- Open to Community
- Technical & 2-Year Degree Options ONLY
- 4-Year Degree Applicants MUST Transfer
- No Resident Halls – Students Commute to Class
- Less Campus & Student Involvement
- Cost-Effective: Usually Most Affordable College Option
3. Academics & Accreditation

- Colleges Offer Different Degree Programs
- Accreditation is EVERYTHING.

"Many technical and online schools attract students by offering desirable degree programs, affordable classes and flexible schedules, but those schools aren’t always accredited. The US Dept of Education sets standards for colleges and universities. Reputable schools hold REGIONAL ACCREDITATION, not to be confused with National Accreditation."
Choosing the Right College

4. Cost/Financial Aid

- College is an Investment in Your Future
- Average Cost of Tuition and Fees for one year:
  Public: $7,020 | Private: $26,200 | Community: $2,500
- Financial Aid is AVAILABLE!

  In the 2008-09 year, more than $126 BILLION in financial aid was awarded to undergraduate students.

Remember: Some schools offer MORE financial aid than others!
