The undergraduate program for Bachelor of Science in Communication Sciences and Disorders is a pre-professional program. A master's degree is the entry-level degree for the field of speech-language pathology. A clinical doctorate is the entry-level degree for the field of audiology. These advanced degrees are required for the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association’s Certificate of Clinical Competence and Illinois Licensure. All students receiving a Bachelor of Science degree in Communication Sciences & Disorders will have the option to pursue either advanced degree since all proposed required coursework in the undergraduate Communication Sciences & Disorders major meets the prerequisite coursework for either graduate degree (MS in SLP or AuD).

Note: Due to the competitive nature and space limitations of this program, transfer students should apply early: Minimum GPA 3.30; Middle 50% GPA 3.38 - 3.73
